

Kingcombe Aquacare

Specialists in Water Management for Landscapes, Fisheries, Leisure and Conservation

Water lies at the very heart of the landscape. Often it provides the central feature around which the landscape itself is designed. It comes in many forms and has a multitude of uses. From the artificial water feature on a modern business park to the natural, clear running chalk stream on a traditional estate, each serves its own purpose and each sets its own challenges.

Since 1987, Kingcombe Aquacare has risen to those challenges. The company has developed a reputation as market leaders, offering a comprehensive service in the specialist world of water management. Combining traditional skills with modern materials and techniques, the Kingcombe team has unrivalled experience of working specifically in the demanding aquatic environment.

This work can be as varied as restoring an 18th century lake or maintaining the water features on a golf course, constructing a new reservoir or herbiciding aquatic plants in an SSSI, installing a waterproof membrane or electric fishing a stretch of river. To each and every task, trained and dedicated Kingcombe Aquacare staff apply the same degree of professionalism and care.

We take pride in our level of integrity, service and commitment, demonstrated by the fact that many of our earliest clients still regularly make use of our services to the present day. Over 75% of new contracts arise from personal recommendation. References are always available upon request.
